"I was lucky enough to have The Hit Men UK perform at my 50th birthday party recently. Having seen them play a number of times before, I knew that their music would go down well with my friends and that they would quickly get everyone on the dance floor - but on the night they really did surpass themselves! We had an absolutely fantastic time - and all of my guests have commented, either at the party or in the days since, just how much they loved the band. As well as being technically strong musicians and vocalists this group plays together with such ease and professionalism that you can't help but be impressed! A great bunch of people who clearly love what they do and want your evening to be a success.

So if you are organizing a party remember that music is always the most important ingredient - and you won't go far wrong with these guys. I can't recommend them highly enough.
